YESTERDAY'S ELECTIONS.

The Usual Majority in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 12.—Returns so far received from thirty-eight counties give Sherman, Republican, for Governor, a majority of 5,571 over Kinnead. Last year the same counties gave Garfield 5,581 majority. The same relative majority over the State will give Sherman a majority of about 55,000 or about 35,000 over all. Reports indicate a majority for the Republicans in the Legislature of 190. The Senate will be more strongly Republican than in 1879, as the Republicans will probably gain one Senator in Dubuque, one in Lee and probably one in Keokuk.

The Ohio Election and Foster's Majority.

The following private telegrams were received here to-day:

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 11.—11:45 p. m.—Twenty-three counties have returned. Returns from 130 show our net gain of 180. Foster's plurality estimated at 17,000. G. A. BASSITT.

Foster's Majority 15,000.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—Chairman Nash, of the Republican State Committee, has just said Foster's majority will not be less than 15,000. A Republican house of representatives, he says, is assured without Hamilton County being considered, and he has hopes of the Senate. Candidates for the legislature in Hamilton County run so close it is impossible yet to tell how the delegation will stand.

Democratic Nominations in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 12.—In the Democratic convention to-day both Tammany Hall and Irving Hall delegations were excluded, and returned to New York to-day without bolting. Every movement in the convention showed the influence of S. J. Tilden.

Sudden Death of Dr. J. G. Holland.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Dr. J. G. Holland, an author and editor of Scribner's Magazine, died suddenly of heart disease at his residence, 40 Park place, in this city, at 6 a. m. He was apparently in perfect health yesterday, and spent the day at the publication office preparing "Topics of the Times" for the December number. He awoke at 5 a. m. and spoke to his wife about rising. A moment later he began breathing heavily, and before any one could be summoned he was dead. He was born July 24, 1819. He leaves a widow, two young daughters and a son at Yale. He has been suffering from heart disease for six years. He will be buried Saturday.

Races at Newmarket.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—In the race for the Middlepark plate stakes to-day, Kermesse came second, Geraldine second and Marguerite third.

Faxhall Wins Again.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The race for the select stakes resulted in another victory for Faxhall, with Tristan second, Maskelyne third.

Current Rumors in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—There were many rumors and traders at the Windsor Hotel last night canvassing the selling of the situation, and while it was almost universally conceded that the market did not wear a very rosy appearance yesterday afternoon the average impression was that there would probably be some improvement and likely a rally of a few per cent. some time to-day.

Mr. Gould's most intimate friends say he anticipates a better market by several points almost immediately, and that he bought a great many stocks yesterday on this belief and also advised personal acquaintances to buy.

Sage said in the afternoon, on his way up town, that he thought there would not be much more serious anxiety in the money market, and he was also looking for a sharp rally soon in stocks. The latter, however, hinted slyly that he thought that he might have accumulated more money in the market, and that Gould was a seller, and while there was no very large orders in the room at any time yesterday, his brokers bought a great deal of Western securities.

The large room traders, it was alleged last night, endeavored to rally the market before the close, but without success. It was stated this party had the manipulation almost entirely in their own hands, but were divided and mixed in their ideas, and while they added that their short interest was large, they could not make out whether the tide was oversold or not.

Mr. Vanderbilt held an interview with a press reporter last evening, and said there was absolutely nothing new worth mentioning regarding the trunk line matters, and quietly remarked that the stock market looked very weak. It is understood that some of the Vanderbilt holdings in Reading are very sore because they did not sell out their stock when it was up.

Gowen is going to London Saturday on important business connected with Reading of a private character. He says he will hold proxies on 400,000 shares of stock, whereas only 343,000 will constitute a majority. The Utah & Northern Railroad Company has obtained legal papers enjoining the extension of the U. P. Oregon Road. The action in which it is necessary for the latter to pass.

A Chicago dispatch says the break in the grain corner has caused increased activity in East-bound freights, and it also goes by rail. The low freight by roads through Gould's large lines very much.

A Washington special to a prominent banking firm here says President Arthur has stated that the Treasury portfolio was given to the custody of three persons named Boutwell, Folger or Morgan, but he will not say which, preferring that the name of the appointee be announced from the Clerk's desk in the Senate. It will probably be Folger.

The specific route from Europe is estimated at $4,000,000.

Dry goods dealers represent that the consumption of cotton goods is more than the production, and the prices of goods have advanced 16 1/2 cents during the past two days.

Senator Edmunds thinks that the extra session of the Senate ought not to last more than ten days.

ON CAPITOL HILL.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS TO-DAY.

Caucuses of Both Parties To-day.—The Committee Question Undecided.—No Attempt to Elect Officers.—Gov. Face and Edmunds' Nominations Sent to Executive Session.

Some comment has been excited over the sudden objection interposed yesterday by Senator Davis, of West Virginia, to the consideration of the Edmunds resolution not to interfere with the standing committees of the Senate at this time. A Democratic Senator, who was questioned about the matter this morning, said that the only object Senator Davis had was not to act too hastily on the matter. Said the Senator: "We desire to have a distinct understanding. As far as I am concerned—and there are many Senators of the same opinion—if the Republicans will agree not to use it as a precedent, I am content to have no reorganization of committees until the regular session, and am willing that the Chief Clerk shall continue to act as Secretary until we meet next December. There are only a few committees who will have work to perform this session, anyhow. Those are the Judiciary, Post-office, Military and Naval, and I think, as composed at present, they can perform all required of them satisfactorily. I do not know but what this matter may be compromised to some such effect as I have stated to-day."

Gossip About the Republican Programme.

The Republican caucus in caucus at 10 o'clock this morning, but not more than half the members were present at that hour. While waiting for other members to arrive they are reported to have taken up the question of reorganization and discussed it informally. It was stated that the President would to-day send in a large number of nominations, such as Indian agents, registers of land offices, and receivers of public moneys left over by the late President Garfield. It is generally the custom to refer all nominations to their appropriate committees before they are returned to the Senate for action. Unofficially a Republican Senator learned that the Democrats would waive custom in connection with the delayed nominations, and agree to their confirmation at once, inasmuch as they were all made under a strict Republican administration. When this was stated to the caucus this morning, very few, if any, Senators would give it credence. Insignificant as some of the offices might appear, they believe the Democrats would endeavor to secure their share of them. With reference to the question of electing new Senators, it was the sentiment of a number of Republicans that it would be well to force the election of a Secretary at once. They believe that the Democrats would not object to the election of a Secretary, and it was thought that, owing to the objection to Mr. Gorham by some Republicans they would decline to vote. This would, of course, insure the election of Col. L. Q. C. Washington. Next in order would be the Secretary of the Interior, and it was believed, would vote for the Republican nominee for that office, and also for the Republican candidate for Executive Clerk.

The Democratic Caucus.

The Democratic caucus was in session about three-quarters of an hour, and concluded to make no change in the standing resolution provided, it was not to act as a precedent at the meeting of the regular session of Congress. They also concluded not to push their candidate for Secretary at this time, but to favor a resolution authorizing the Chief Clerk to act.

Senate Proceedings To-day.

There were a number of vacant seats when the Senate assembled to-day and the galleries were comparatively light. When prayer was over the Senators proceeded to the roll call, and the roll of the day was read. More important business being on hand it was laid over.

The Transgressor's Way.

A Hard Road to Travel.—Martin J. Bergin, a divorcee, was arrested yesterday by the police on the charge of assault with intent to kill. The trial of Martin J. Bergin, on the charge of assault with intent to kill, was held yesterday in the Criminal Court. The case was called on by the State's Attorney, and the defendant was represented by his counsel. The case was called on by the State's Attorney, and the defendant was represented by his counsel. The case was called on by the State's Attorney, and the defendant was represented by his counsel.

The Republican Caucus.

The Republicans were in caucus for one hour and decided not to develop their plans to-day. Said one Republican Senator to a Currier reporter, "Things are working and will develop in a day or two."

The Committee Working.

Several Democrats started to their feet to meet Mr. Edmunds' proposition, but Senator Garland was the most nimble, and securing recognition, suggested that the resolution lie over until the executive communication from the President was received. The present Senate, he said, was convened for disposing of executive business only, and in order to properly meet that it was necessary to reorganize several of the more important committees, and that such business would be known when the communication of the President was received.

Mr. Edmunds' Reply.

Mr. Edmunds replied that his resolution was the same as had been the practice at every call session of the Senate, when, unlike the opening session of a Congress, there were but few new members. As a commercial transaction he did not think it was wise to discuss the matter in public. The profits would not equal the expenditure. He recognized the fact that the political strength of the Senate was about at an ebb—there or thereabouts.

Just then the well known form of Maj. Pruden appeared at the main door of the President's first message to the Senate.

Maj. Pruden was faithfully attired and somewhat pale, and he was escorted by a number of military men. The venerable Doorkeeper Isaac Bassett approached and received him and the two were scrutinized closely and eagerly by Senators and spectators. Amid an anxious hush Capt. Bassett said: "Mr. President, a message from the President of the United States."

Waddled Across the Main Aisle.

And while the other Senators were interested in the communication from the President's desk, the doubtful Illinois Senator laid his head close to that of Senator Edmunds, and a whispered conversation was held.
